HARVEST HOME

All safely gathered in;
Is Autumn's golden grain;
How sweet to hear the ringing cheer
That greets the last full wain.
We may not even call
An ear of wheat our own,
But where's the heart that takes in part
In hailing Harvest Home?

Then let thanksgiving songs Be o'er the country spread, To Him to whom the praise belongs For sending dally bread. For He whose gracious eye Has slumber'd not nor slept,

Has sumber'd not nor stept,
Again has sent a rich supply,
And well his promise kept.
So let thanksgiving songs
Both far and wide be spread,
To Him to whom the praise belongs
For sending daily bread.

On the night of the mass meeting Lieut. Frank Barker rode a dun brown yellow horse with an abreviated caudal appendage. Approaching the Seminary Frank experienced an uncontrollable desire to appear as riding a praneing, fiery steed, and in order to induce his beast to act so as to give at least a possible idea that it was that kind of a horse, he drew in his breath, threw out his heels, paused for a moment and then—dug his spurs into the animal's quivering flanks. The result was peculiar and probably more interesting to the spectators than to Frank. At least one would suspect so from the remarks that Frank Barker rode a dun brown yellow would suspect so from the remarks that alive with lights borne by footmen and the gallant Lieutenant was overheard to horsemen. Delegations from the surroundindulge in as he crawled back into the ing towns soon commenced to arrive, and suddle and relighted his lamp.

Among the mistakes the principal one was the public annoucement of speakers when was known whether they would be able to be present or not. There are few things that create greater dissatisfaction than any disappointment in the car loads of lumber, besides the usual number of cars. A pretty good load. Most of the lumber was for fencing at this end of the route. A cheese recently shipped from here to the State Fair, Missouri, which was made under Randall's Young America Cheese Patent. by A. D.
